Space Roach

Space roaches are almost mythical creatures that have plagued the galaxy for centuries. Over the last three hundred years the numbers of space roaches have dropped dramatically, mainly due to several Old Republic extermination teams hunting them down. They can still be found in various locations across the galaxy and are generally a threat not to be ignored.

Space roaches are enormous creatures of immense strength. They are generally larger than the biggest Wookiees and have the ferocity to match. They have large needle-like fangs that they use to inject venom into their victims that slowly disolves the victim's internal organs (much like a spider). For defense the roaches have an armored exoskeleton that can even withstand the vacuum of space for short periods as well as spiked claws on the end of each leg.
