Description: The YT-1350 is a cut down version of the hugely popular YT-1300, basically a halfed model of that design. However the lighter hull allows the vessel to save space on drive systems, meaning that the vessel hasn't lost too much cargo capacity, although the small hull does mean that the cargo carried does amount to a measley 50 tonnes which is too small for most captains. The YT-1350 does excel at delivering small but high value cargoes, but the lack of space for modifications has also led to potential buyers choosing larger designs. The area that the YT-1350 has become very popular in is as a combat vessel, for escort duties or piracy, with the small manueverable hull capable of becoming an efficient and deadly combat vessel.
