Equipment D20 / BlasTech WristBlast-500

BlasTech WristBlast-500

BlasTech's little-known WristBlast-series is a line of wrist blasters that were marketed to bounty hunters among others. The general idea was that to give the user a greater range of movement and quicker response times. The blaster's main parts are strapped to the back of the user's wrist and extend only as far as halfway up the forearm. The trigger is usually run across the palm as a pressure grip, allowing the user to fire the weapon simply by applying pressure to the grip.

The WristBlast-500 is the smallest and most easily concealed in the series and can be easily hidden under any slightly baggy sleeve.
