Description: Aeosians were a sentient species native to the Outer Rim planet Aeos Prime. They were ruled by a queen. During the First Order–Resistance war, representatives of the Colossus including Kazuda Xiono and Griff Halloran met with their ruler.

Biology and appearance
Aeosians were a bipedal species with long limbs and webbed hands and feet. They had flat faces with large, forward-facing eyes and somewhat humanoid noses and lips. They had four small spikes on their chins. Aeosians had smooth skin that could be various shades of blue or green in colour. On their heads, Aeosians possessed a dorsal fin that ran from the peak of the forehead to the base of the skull, as well as fins that curved along their cheekbones. Fins could also be observed on the backs of their calves, on the outer sides of their feet, and on their necks.

Aeosians were sexually dimorphic, with males possessing broader skulls, necks, and shoulders than the more slender females.
