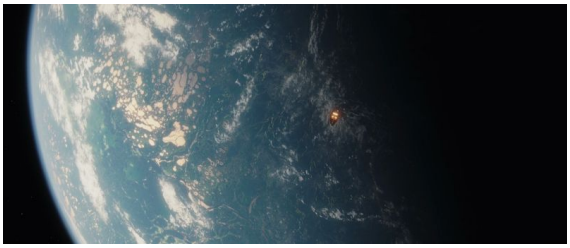
Planets D6 / Morak



Name: Morak
Class: Terrestrial
Atmosphere: Breathable
Primary terrain: Jungles
Points of interest: Morak Imperial refinery, Morak village
Immigrated species: Human, Vorg Alsum's species
Major exports: Rhydonium

Description: Morak was a jungle planet inhabited by humans. The planet served as a secret mining hub for the Galactic Empire, which processed rhydonium in a secret refinery. Following the fall of the Empire and the rise of the New Republic, Imperial forces continued to operate on the planet. In 9 ABY, intending to locate the cruiser of Moff Gideon, the Mandalorian Din Djarin and the former Imperial sharpshooter Migs Mayfeld infiltrated the Morak refinery to extract the cruiser's coordinates from a terminal. In their escape, Mayfeld fired Boba Fett's cycler rifle at the shipment of rhydonium, setting off an explosion that destroyed the refinery.

Points of Interest

Morak Imperial refinery

A rhydonium refinery was located on the world of Morak. It was operated by an Imperial remnant led by ex-Imperial Security Bureau personnel. In approximately 9 ABY the refinery was infiltrated by Din Djarin and Migs Mayfeld posing as Juggernaut Pilots to retrieve information on Moff Gideon's light cruiser. During their escape, Mayfeld fired on a shipment of rhydonium, causing a chain reaction that heavily damaged the refinery.

T-12 (tunnel)

T-12 was a tunnel that was a part of an Imperial refinery on Morak. Juggernaut Five was cleared to enter the tunnel before it was assaulted by Din Djarin and his allies.

Morak village

A village was located on the planet Morak. Migs Mayfeld and Din Djarin passed through the village while driving Juggernaut Five.

Stats by FreddyB, descriptive text from WookieePedia.
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.