Description: Edouard Fenel was a Human Imperial admiral who was loyal to Roan Fel's Empire-in-exile during the Second Imperial Civil War. Fenel was placed in command of the Bastion Second Fleet.

History

Fenel ultimately decided to support Emperor Fel. Fenel was commander of the Bastion Second Fleet when the Galactic Alliance Remnant and Empire-in-exile agreed to work together against the Sith. When the first joint operation was decided on, Fel chose Fenel to lead the forces loyal to his empire in the battle alongside Stazi. Stazi suspected that Fel assigned Fenel to test him and the Remnant.

During the Battle of Ralltiir, Fenel and Stazi pitted their fleets against the Sith's Coruscant Third Fleet. There were two objectives to this battle: capture the Sith fleet and force the Sith to extend their forces thinner. During the battle, Fenel told Admiral Kelsan to surrender Darth Krayt's fleet or be destroyed, and even encouraged mutiny if the ship's officers refused to do so. Kelsan agreed to surrender.

The plan began to fall apart when Vaclen Tor, captain of the Steadfast, refused to surrender and called on the rest of the Third Fleet to self-destruct their ships and escape. Fenel advocated Tor’s crew to mutiny against him, but the crew was loyal to their commanding officer. In response, Fenel ordered all Imperial ships, including the surrendering Imperial fleet, to destroy the Steadfast. However, Fenel’s ruthlessness encouraged Kelsan to order self-destruction instead of surrendering. Fenel ordered his forces to destroy the escape pods and destroy the remaining ship, but Stazi had had enough of Fenel's ruthless tactics. Stazi placed his fleet between Fenel and Kelsan's fleets and ordered his fleet to obliterate Fenel's forces if any of them shot at their forces. Stazi allowed Kelsan's crews to evacuate their ships and detonate them.

However, the Steadfast had been damaged by Fenel's barrage—their escape pods and self-destruct systems were disabled. Fenel, after finding this out, ordered his forces to destroy Tor's vessel. He advised Stazi to pull his own forces away from the Steadfast, but Stazi refused to back down. He ordered his fleet to fire a barrage of blocking fire between Fenel's fleet and Tor's vessels, prompting Fenel to call off the attack. Roan Fel later apologized to Stazi for Fenel's tactics, saying he thought Fenel understood the situation better than he really did.

Personality and traits

Edouard Fenel believed that Roan Fel was the rightful Emperor, and therefore supported him when the Sith seized control of the Empire. However, Fenel was ruthless when it came to dealing with his Emperor's enemies, even willing to use the Sith's own brutal tactics against them. He was also very critical of the Galactic Alliance, particularly Gar Stazi, as he insulted him regularly when they were working together.
