Republic Heavy Repulsortank

Among the fastest of the Republic's tanks, wearing some of the toughest repulsorlift armor in the Republic Army, and equipped with one of the best laser cannons in the Republic arsenal, the first Republic-class repulsortank rolled off the line on-time and on-budget (the Imperial version would later prove to be even better and also on-budget).

These heavy repulsortanks served as the main mechanized force within the Republic Army during the outbreak of the Clone Wars. Following the deployment of the r1-H tanks Ubrikkian was immediately contracted to design and manufacture three variants based off of the same chassis. These other variants would include an APC as well as a light and medium repulsortank.
