Description: The Dauntless class was the second largest capital ship design that the Rebel Alliance had during the Galactic Civil War, and was provided to them by SoroSuub. The vessel is built around the frame of a luxury liner, but there the similarity ends, with enhanced armour plating and a large number of weapon batteries installed on the hull. The design serves the Alliance and now the New Republic well, as it is a sleek, state of the art warship, which has proven itself invaluable where deployed. Although the design has been built in much smaller numbers than the Mon Calimari Cruisers which made up the majority of the Rebel fleet, it has been responsible for almost as many victories.
