Craft:

InterGalactic Banking Clan Hailfire Droid

Type: Self Aware Mobile Missile Platform

Scale: Speeder

Length: 6.4 Meters

Skill: Ground Vehicles 6D, Missile Weapons 7D, Vehicle Blasters 7D

Crew: N/A

Cargo Capacity: 0kg

Cost: 23,000 (used)

Cover: N/A

Maneuverability: 3D

Move: 40, 120 kmh

Body Strength: 5D

Weapons:

  Missile Launchers (30 Missiles)

    Fire Arc: Front

    Scale: Walker

    Skill: Missile Weapons

    Fire Control: 3D

    Range: 50-200/1/2km

    Damage: 7D

  Twin Light Blaster Cannons

    Fire Arc: Front

    Scale: Speeder

    Skill: Vehicle Blasters

    Fire Control: 2D

    Range: 50-300/500/1km

    Damage: 5D

Description: The Hailfire Droid is a cross between a battle droid and a light tank designed and used by the InterGalactic Banking Clan, and later the Confederacy of Independent Systems when the Banking Clan joined them at the beginning of the Clone Wars. Hailfire Droids are built to deliver Surface to Air, and Surface to Surface attacks with their banks of 30 missiles, their mobility is provided by 30 enlarged hoop wheels which are driven by a series of magpulse drives along their circumference. The Droids main hull is a small body suspended between the two wheels, equipped with a single photoreceptor and containing the droids logic matrices. Since the Banking Clans were defeated during the Clone Wars the demand on the black market for Hailfires has remained high, but due to weapons restrictions and the massive destruction wrecked on the Confederation forces by the Republic during the Clone Wars there have been very few available. Most commonly the Logic Matrices have long since been removed, and a small cockpit mounted in the body instead, allowing a single pilot to ride and control the vehicle through jury rigged controls.