Description: The Nebulon-A is the predecessor of the famous Nebulon-B Frigate, and is essentially the same ship. With increased automation and the size reduction of a number of systems the Nebulon-B managed to do the same job with a smaller crew. Less manueverable and with a slower hyperdrive speed than its replacement, the Nebulon-A still makes a fine ship in its own right, but no match for most other capital ships. With the double lower hull needed for its larger crew requirement, the Nebulon-A does actually mount more weapons than the Nebulon-B, but still manages to come out behind most other modern warships. Nebulon-A's are most often refitted using systems from crippled Nebulon-B's, boosting their efficiency up to reasonable levels, these refitted vessels are fairly common within the Rebellion (and later the New Republic) which needs all the capital ships it can get its hands on.
