

Aries Mobile Suite

The Romefeller Aries-class mobile suite (AMS) was intended to act as a high-altitude atmospheric interceptor and double up in a close air support role. In the first role, it didn't function very well-the Empire had plenty of fighters and low orbit ships to take care of that. However, it did serve a valuable purpose in a CAS function. Invaluable in the assault against the Mogadishu Fortress, these craft were extremely maneuverable and, working in conjunction with marine suits and Leo's, were very effective in crushing early opponents of the New Order. Unfortunately, combat focus shifted to outer space, an arena the Aries couldn't compete in.
