Description: Tommet Sozach was a Ginmid male who led an army of mercenaries. When the galaxy seemed to be at peace, Sozach left the army to operate on his own. He worked as a trick shooter until a demonstration went wrong and left him with a death sentence. By the time of the war between the First Order and the Resistance, Sozach worked as a personal defense instructor on Kijimi, where he spent time in the Spicer Runner's Den shortly before the destruction of the world.

Tommet Sozach was a Ginmid male who at one point led a mercenary army of his species, but broke out on his own after predictions of a prolonged period of peace proved to be true. By the time that the war between the First Order and Resistance broke out, most of Sozach's best soldiers would have retired. Instead, he earned a living as a crowd-pleasing trick shooter until a performance went wrong and earned him a death sentence. Escaping to become an inhabitant of Kijimi City on the planet Kijimi, Sozach began working as a personal defence instructor.

During the First Order occupation of Kijimi in 35 ABY, Sozach was stood with a human woman by the entrance to the bar of the Spicer Runner's Den in Kijimi City when the Spice Runner Zorii Bliss led a group of Resistance agents through the room. Shortly after Sozach encountered the Resistance members, the First Order evacuated their forces from Kijimi and destroyed it.

Personality and traits

Tommet Sozach had green skin. When war returned to the galaxy after its prolonged period of peace, he sometimes had to fight a pang of remorse for giving up his army-for-hire.

Equipment

Sozach wore a cloned karabbac-pelt jacket and a brown fur hat with a pair of orange goggles and brown boots. He carried a blaster rifle.
