Description: The Inferno is a small capital ship used for patrols and fleet support missions, although can be readily converted for other roles. While the Inferno is considered by the Mandalorians to be underpowered and undergunned for a capital ship, its cloaking device and atomic compression missile launchers make it a very powerful vessel in its own right. Inferno have even been used as the core of a fleet of patrol vessels when other ships have not been available, and can act in support roles by converting their modest cargo hold into fuel storage.
