Description: The 3D4X was designed by Genetech to fill a role similar but not identical to the 3PO series of droids, since Cybot Galactica had the protocol droid market pretty much sewn up, they created this droid to be able to translate, but also to be able to be of use to business men. The 3D4X is capable of running the day to day dealings of a business, although in more important business dealings and negociations the droid lacks the authority to finish deals. The personality matrix of the 3D4X was the real triumph for the droids creators, aloof yet deferential, with each droid possessing a distinctive personality of their own.
