Description: The Advanced dwarf spider droid or (A- DSD) was a more heavily armed and armored version of the dwarf spider droid. It was apparently part of a program to upgrade the Separatist forces, along with the super battle droids, the upgraded version of the standard battle droids.

It was built for tough combat on uneven terrain, and was therefore equipped with multiple weapons-systems. These included dual target- seeking missiles which would fire once the targeting systems had a lock-on.

On top of the droid's frame, was a powerful cannon that shot high-energy bolts with explosive power and tremendous range of destruction.

Republic clone commandos would face several of these war droids during their covert missions throughout the Clone Wars.
