Description: The Cascade is a "Utility" speeder bike, designed as a repulsorlift single person vehicle, capable of towing and performing a number of working tasks and jobs. For this reason the engine is designed to pull a large amount of weight, however this means that its speed suffers, especially in comparison to other speeder bikes, but is still a very fast vehicle, and has a high flight ceiling compared to many civilian vehicles. Owners have complained that the Cascade is noisy and uncomfortable, but this seems to have done nothing to harm its sales, and even though the design has now been discontinued, many of these bikes can still be found on the second hand market.
