

Clone Trooper

Clone Troopers were the main combatants on the side of the Old Republic during the Clone Wars, which in fact were named after them. Cloned from the bounty hunter Jango Fett by the Kaminoan cloners, they were better trained and skilled than the Storm Troopers that eventually replaced them, however as recruiting is far cheaper than cloning they were doomed because of the Empire's policy of using the cheapest solution to any problem. Clone Troopers fought side by side with the Jedi Knights, until the Jedi themselves were declared the enemy, and the Clone Troopers hunted them down aided by Darth Vader. Their armour offers similar protection to the later sets of Storm Trooper Armour, but is bulkier and more restrictive, making it somewhat difficult to fight in. Specialist Clone Troopers were trained as pilots, gunners and commanders, these were distinguished from normal troopers by coloured panels on their armour, normal trooper armour was the same simple white panels over the black bodyglove as the later Storm Troopers.
