Description: The CZ series of droids was a best seller for the Serv-o-Droid corporation, and from the number of these you still see on the streets you would never guess that there hasn't been one made in over 4 decades. Although capable of limited translation functions, the CZ comes into its own using communications systems, and is equally competant using its own internal system, or conventional comm systems. The CZ also excels at encrypting data and communications, and has its own encrypted data store which is extremely hard for slicers to extract data from, which makes these droids ideal as data couriers, or even just as records keepers for the small businessman.
