Description: The MTT was the Trade Federations main way of deploying troops, and after being carried to the surface it could transport troops to where ever they might be needed, and also provide firesupport to both troops and tanks. These were mainly destroyed during the Clone Wars, however a few survive to this day, and with their main comparments gutted they act as cargo or troop transports, however the extremely slow speed of the MTT has made it unpopular with even the most desperate militia forces since it can take many days to deploy to the sight of a battle, and newer faster vehicles can easily out maneuver them, which usually leads to their destruction.
