Description: The J Type Diplomatic transport was a popular Nubian ship during the peaceful years before the Clone Wars began, and although too expensive for anyone but the richest buyer, these ships still managed to sell in moderately high numbers. Although now their job is done by yachts, the J Type still manages to get high prices at auctions because they are a work of art from a bygone age. Also because they are such obvious signs of affluence, these ships are usually modified to defend their rich owners and passengers.
