Description: The Farlancer is a swift and agile fighter which is armed with two unique long ranged laser cannons, which can engage enemy fighters at a much greater range than is possible with ordinary laser cannons. The Farlancer allows pilots to destroy enemy fighters before they come into range of the enemy weapons, a great advantage which requires skilled pilots to take advantage of, meaning that to ordinary planetary defence forces the Farlancer is little better than any other starfighter. With RekkonArms competing against larger and more famous corporations such as Sienar and Incom, the Farlancer sold poorly, hardly standing out from the crowd at all in the busy post Endor market place. However these fighters have been gaining a reputation after a wing was purchased and used successfully by Scarlet Thann's Raiders, who have been raiding both the Empire's and Republic's cargo convoys on the outer rim for a couple of years.
