Description: A weapon based on the fusion thrusters and fusion drive technology that was used at the dawn of space travel, a controlled fusion reaction with the energy output focussed in a tight beam. Designed by Corellia Drive Technologies shortly before they entered bankruptcy, it provided a small amount of financial relief to the company who had not changed over to newer manufacturing techniques and drive systems and proved to be a powerful anti-vehicle weapon. The design has had a resurgence with the introduction of walkers, and a number of unofficial reproductions have appeared on the market since the Clone Wars and the rise of the Galactic Empire.
