Description: The Hangrol h480k is a long range Blaster Pistol with an effective range as good as many Blaster Rifles, it also has a very large energy clip. It has become popular with those who like a pistol with these features, but has lost a lot of support because of its fragile build quality, and high failure rate which means that most of the buying public find it far too expensive for the benefits it gives. However the h480k still sells in sufficient quantity for production to have continued for almost 30 years without the design being modified.
