Description: This assassin droid is disguised as an R2 astromech, and is capable of most functions of these droids. However when necessary it can open up revealing its arc welder and blaster cannon weapons. Designed by Imperial Intelligence, this droid was supposed to infiltrate Rebel (and later New Republic) bases and installations to eliminate key personel. They were moderately successful, but due to the amount of programming necessary so the droid could impersonate an astromech they were only average when actually in combat. Yowever using surprise and the fact no one really pays attention to astromech droids they could be extremely devastating when deployed.
