Equipment D20 / BlasTech A290

BlasTech A290

The A280 was reputed to be the best armor-piercing rifle available anywhere in the galaxy. At medium range, it has been known to cut a fully-armored Imperial stormtrooper nearly in half. Still, when used during the Imperial assault on Hoth, the A280 failed to put more than a fist-sized dent in the armor of the Imperial walkers.

A newer version of the A280 was introduced shortly after the first Battle of Coruscant some two and a half years post Endor when the Empire was forced to let the planet fall into Republic hands. This newer version was the A290 heavy blaster rifle. BlasTech refined their already powerful A280 and the resulting A290 was even more powerful.
