

Weapons D6 / RanCorp RRL-44 Repeater

RanCorp RRL-44 Repeater Rifle

RanCorp had never thought much of the repeating blaster designs until Elvar Nericall started working for them. Though it doesn't bear its name this weapon is a part of the Nericall line but the base design was taken off of MetaCorp's LRR-44 and this weapon's name is meant to display the fact that RanCorp made the design better. The weapon has a fairly long barrel which is made of a sleek black material that doesn't reflect light, the stock is made of real wood which has been treated against the elements. These features are meant mainly to show off rather than serve a purpose. The weapon was also improved to take standard power packs and given a dead-sight targeting sight.
