

Weapons D6 / Mestic Munitions Type II PRG

Repeating Railgun

The Type II PRG was designed at the orders of Mestic Munitions' owner as she demanded to have an automatic version of the weapon that could easily mow down an entire squad of heavily armored troopers. It was designed using the technology that Mestic and Kashan Technological Development (a cooperative company run by Kashan Industries and Kashan Systems) had developed for the Type I PRG that was issued in small numbers to a handful of PDF soldiers.

The Type II can fire 150% faster than the original Type I and retains many of the original design aspects as the Type I. The only physical difference is an enlarged ammunition clip which can hold twice as many rounds as that of the Type I.
