

Alderaanian Blade Master Sword

The Alderaanian Blade Master rank is from the time of the jedi when Alderaanians were proud knights of the republic. These swords were specially created by unknown means thousands of years before Palpatine's rise to power. They are beautifully crafted and made of a quadranium-titanium alloy with a soft grip and gold plating over the hilt. The blade is folded precisely and approximately fifty times and compressed to an unbelievable tension, this causes a need for great skill to wield it as it's so dense. The part that makes it so strong though is that all along the edge of the blade the alloy is made into collapsed matter and sharpened back to a point make it unbelievably strong. These swords are now scattered throughout the galaxy lost, some have found blades in Alderaan's graveyard intact due to their unbelievably strong nature. These blades are marked on the hilt with a golden heron and again on the blade a heron is etched with acid.
