Planets D6 / Nellmnari II

Nellmnari II

The Nellmnari system is located near Bakura, on the outskirts of the small area of space controlled by the Ssi-ruuvi Imperium. It consists of only two planets: Nellmnari I and Nellmnari II.

Nellmnari I is a molten hunk of rock and gas with temperatures high enough to melt most metals. Travel to the world is impossible due to this enviroment.

Nellmnari II, on the other hand, is a lush terrestrial world home to the Nellmn and a score of exotic local planet and animal life. The planet has a system of three small moons which serve as military defense outposts originally setup after the first invasion attempt made by the Ssi-ruuk several centures prior to the Ssi-ruuk's attempted invasion of Bakura.

Travel into Nellmn is highly restricted and non-Nellmn attempting to land on the planet must first deal with the Nellmnari Navy. Customs are fairly strict, prohibiting the import of any off world plants or animals and offering severe punishment for those who smuggle such goods in. After putting up with tedious inspections and interviews from Nellmn customs officers, almost all ships are permitted to land. Visitors are only granted a maximum of a month on the surface, after which they must leave or face imprisonment.

Due to the fairly remote location, Nellmnari was never a part of the Old Republic nor the Empire. However, Nellmnari citizens voted to join the New Republic some twenty years following the Battle of Endor.
