

Vehicles D6 / Modified Aratech 440 Super-Heavy

Rebel Alliance Speizoc v-188 Artillery Vehicle

The Alliance has several Speizoc v-188s, some liberated, others purchased in the invisible market. This is one of the heaviest guns available to Alliance forces. Most are deployed to secure warehouses, waiting the outbreak of conventional war, some are in the field with regular units in conventional theaters. A few are in SpecForce service, for missions that require extra punch. Stored units are usually not equipped with self-propulsion, but the field units have been mounted on a modified Aratech 440 Super-Heavy Armored Chassis (the name is more impressive than the vehicle). These 440s have themselves been modified, with repulsor motivators added for increased mobility, targeting computer upgrades, high-efficiency echargers, and a separate fusion generator to power the gun.

These modified Speizocs have been known to serve as light makeshift tanks for use against a variety of Imperial tanks and speeders. The Alliance once debated about whether or not to deploy large numbers of these artillery vehicles to heavy armor groups as support tanks but the number of Speizoc v-188s available at the time were highly insufficient.
