Capsule: Again, the folks at Th'Ta have made a wonderful weapon, and due to their small scale and remote location, most of us can't experience it. Typical of riot guns, the TA-11 series has multiple, fixed barrels, that are splayed apart in what often called a "bird's foot" or "fan" pattern. Each of these barrels has an individual exciter, prismatic crystal housing and actuating blaster module, allowing them to build up a bolt on their own, yet not interfere with it's neighbors. The TA-11LB has longer, tightly bundled barrels for longer range and a tighter group, while the -11SB has short barrels that spread radically, giving a very wide, short range spread. The -11LB's barrels create a cone of fire that spreads to 7.5 degrees from the line of sight, with the -SB's spread being twice that. Anything there is in for some major pain. (note: the stats fro the TA-11SB are shown in the brackets)

Game Notes: Riot guns effect a large area, but they do have holes in their pattern. Each target in he field of fire must make successful Dodge roll, or be hit.
