Background on the Priest

Since the dawn of man the vampires have walked among us killing, feeding. The only one with the strength and skill to stop their heinous evil is the Slayer. Trained by the Watcher, one Slayer dies, and the next is chosen.

Although I am a Watcher, I was a Catholic Priest first. They frequently ask how I know all this, to which the answer is, because it is your birthright and I'm part of it. Though it usually requires unliving proof.

I train girls to be Slayers. I have done so for a hundred lives, and I shall continue to do so. I'm born each time with the knowledge that my purpose is to prepare the Chosen One for her battle. I am not a Slayer, and I must not interfere even if I want to, even if I think that this time the girl is truly exceptional.

Quote: "We've got a vampire on the premises." Roleplaying the Priest

Reborn again you stand ready to take your position as Watcher. You have been a Slayer's Watcher many times over in your lifetimes. You are steeped in the traditions of the Watchers, but also an outsider to the Council. You want to take an active part in the hunt for the supernatural instead of being a mere observer. While committed to training and preparing the Slayer, you are also a lot more likely than other Watchers to go out on patrols.

Given your new approach on the war against the supernatural, you are becoming more aggressive and dedicated. You think nothing of patrolling with your Slayer, and using all who join your battles to their utmost (and perhaps beyond) capacity. No doubt that's going to get you and them in trouble someday.
