Charcter Bio - Niner Skirata?also known as RC-1309 and IC-1309?was a clone of the bounty hunter Jango Fett, created on Kamino to serve in the Grand Army of the Republic. Niner was trained as a clone commando by the Mandalorian Cuy'val Dar training sergeant, Kal Skirata, a man he would come to love and respect like a father. When war broke out on Geonosis between the Galactic Republic and the Confederacy of Independent Systems, Niner led the men of Lambda Squad in the opening battle of the Clone Wars. Following the Battle of Geonosis, Niner would be the only member of his squad to survive and would later join with three other lone squad survivors to form Omega Squad, whom he would serve with throughout the war.

The next place he saw action in was when his squad was sent to Qiilura to destroy a biohazard facility and capture the Confederate scientist Ovolot Qail Uthan. When the squad evacuated the planet with their hostage, he personally faced off against Ghez Hokan. By feigning injury, it was a plan to have Hokan come forward to him where Fi, another member, would snipe him in the head. However plans did not work that way, and Etain Tur-Mukan ended up killing Hokan.

Niner, along with Omega Squad, shipped out to Gaftikar,a Separatist held planet, to assist local rebels, a lizard-humanoid species called Marits. When Darman and Fi infiltrated a city on Gaftikar, Eyat, disguised as civilians they stumbled across the AWOL ARC trooper Sull. They take him back to the camp where Niner disagrees with N-12, A'den, about what to do with the AWOL. Eventually Niner loses the argument and Sull is set free. When Niner led his squad to a HoloNet station in Eyat, Fi suffered a severe head injury that took him off the team.

During the Skirmish on Shinarcan Bridge Extension Niner broke his spine after falling off the bridge because of a Jedi padawan. Darman refused to abandon him, even after being ordered to leave. He recovered and joined the Imperial Commandos along with Darman as the other members of Omega Squad fled.
