Description: The FWMB-10 repeating blaster, also known as FWMB-10K or the megablaster, was a repeating blaster manufactured by the Sonn-Blas Corporation. The FWMB-10s used by First Order megablaster heavy assault troopers-who earned their name from their use of the blaster]- featured integrated stands that could fold out from the blaster, as well as barrel cooling shrouds. Light Infantry Utility Vehicles also used pintle-mounted megablasters as their primary armament. These forward-mounted FWMB-10s had steadying grips and trigger levers, data and power feeds, calibration adjustment, elevation gear, and collimator sleeves.
