Creatures D6 / Puffer pig

Name: Puffer pig
Type: Non-sentient mammalian species

Dexterity: 2D
Perception: 4D
Strength: 3D

Special Abilities

Ability to inflate: Puffer pigs can inflate their bodies when they are scared or sense danger, doubling their size, and becoming much harder to wound. They add +2D to their strength to resist all physical damage when inflated.

Ability to smell precious minerals: Puffer Pigs have extremely sensitive senses of smell, and can be used to locate minerals within the soil gaining +1D to their perception to sense them within the soil.

Move: 10
Size: 1.5m tall, 1.5m long
Orneriness: 1D

Description: Puffer pigs were a non-sentient mammalian species. They were capable of sniffing out valuable minerals with the efficiency of a dozen mining scanners, making them very valuable to smugglers and miners. The Mining Guild was known to pay very well for the animals. When frightened, puffer pigs would inflate their bodies to massive proportions, and were capable of multiple size increases if further threats occurred.

The galactic entrepreneur Lando Calrissian once traded with the criminal Azmorigan for a puffer pig, offering him the Twi'lek pilot Hera Syndulla in return. Calrissian planned on using the pig to find minerals on the planet Lothal; however, Azmorigan confronted Calrissian and demanded the pig back after Syndulla escaped from him. Syndulla and her crew, along with Calrissian, then defeated Azmorigan and his men, using the pig itself in the combat to knock down several of the criminal's men.

Years later, the Spectres traded several pigs to the crime lord Cikatro Vizago as payment for smuggling them onto Lothal, which had come under a severe Imperial lockdown. After landing at the town of Jhothal, the Spectres used the pigs to escape from an Imperial boarding party by taking advantage of Lasat warrior Garazeb Orrelios' tendency to scare the animals, causing the Imperials to be surprised by a barrage of inflated pigs. Vizago, who had been arrested, attempted to escape as well, but couldn't resist trying to take along one uninflated pig, scaring it and becoming trapped when it inflated.

Stats by FreddyB, descriptive text from WookieePedia
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.