Description: Yushyn was the boss of a Mining Guild Asteroid Belt Gas Refinery around the year 3 BBY. Staffed by Rodian employees, Yushyn's facility refined clouzon-36 gas, which was used as fuel by the Galactic Empire. When a group of space-faring creatures called purrgil began eating the gas, he ordered his staff to kill them to prevent losing the resource.

During a round of purrgil shooting, the refinery was attacked by a band of rebels who were trying to steal some of the fuel for the Rebellion and their own starship, the Ghost. Yushyn was dragged down into the planetoid's depths by a purrgil during the confrontation, which ended with the rebels destroying the refinery and making off with the fuel.

Personality and traits

Yushyn belonged to a sentient humanoid species. He was covered in brown fur and skin, and had two black eyes.[1] Yushyn led the operation at the Mining Guild refinery with an unrelenting fervor[3] and spoke Galactic Basic[1][6] to his Rodian workers. He considered the purrgil disgusting[1] and coldly[4] ordered his men to kill them in order to stop them from consuming gas.[1]

Equipment

Yushyn wore a turquoise-and-yellow uniform that closely matched the outfits worn by the Rodian employees of the Mining Guild refinery. Unlike the Rodians, Yushyn's uniform featured a white utility vest with two pouches at his upper torso and the Mining Guild logo adorned on the front and back. Yushyn also wore a pair of black boots.
