Races D6 / Canuckians (Near Human)

Canuckians

Canuckians are a near-human species from the planet of Canuckia in the Colonies. Canuckians, or Canucks, are quite similar to the average humans in almost every way with one small exception - Canuckians tend to be somewhat less intelligent and physically weaker on the average. In addition, most Canuckians have a strange accent and many will end every sentence with the word "eh."

The famous xenobiologist, Rov Peroow, conducted a three year long study on the Canuckian species on their homeworld of Canuckia. Peroow ended his studies with the conclusion that "the Canuckian species, by human standards, is quite eccentric in nature and will require further study in the future."
