

Races D6 / Hunams (Near Human)

Hunams:

The Hunams (pronounced hoo+nams) are a rare near-human species that have nearly been completely wiped from the galaxy by a disease that swept through their homeworld and killed all but a few who were lucky enough to be immune. Those Hunams who did survive the plague nearly a thousand years ago left their homeworld and set out across the galaxy.

Hunams have pale grey skin which is accented by light to dark blue eyes and dark grey or black hair. They are usually tall and slender and possess a specialized metabolism which keeps them this way - there are no obese Hunams.

Hunams tend to very sly and devious and shouldn't be trusted because the word of a Hunam has no meaning. They are usually self-indulging and quite arrogant - although not all are like this - and will get great satisfaction from outsmarting someone.
