Description: Mogos were creatures with hooves and ten legs found on Roon, though like most of the planet's fauna, they were not believed to be indigenous. Their shaggy fur was used to keep a wild mogo warm in the mountains.

The mogo was domesticated for their fur and meat and as mounts. A typical mogo could carry three Human-sized beings with no problem. Most of the people of Roon ate mogo meat and made sweaters out of mogo fur to keep them warm in the winter and dry in the rain. About 20% of Roon's population owned mogo farms.
