Description: Jib Dodger was a human male pilot in the service of the New Republic. He was one of three pilots sent to follow a tracker activated by Davan, a crewmember aboard a New Republic prison transport, when a team of mercenaries boarded the ship to rescue the prisoner Qin.

The team betrayed one of their members, the bounty hunter known as the Mandalorian, but the Mandalorian escaped, managing to rescue Qin alone and return him to the space station where the mercenaries operated. The Mandalorian, however, had hidden the tracker on Qin, and the New Republic pilots followed it, opening fire on the station.

Jib Dodger was a human male who served as a pilot in the New Republic's Starfighter Corps after the Battle of Endor. In 9 ABY, Dodger was assigned to a flight squadron alongside fellow starfighter pilots Sash Ketter and Trapper Wolf whose duties to the New Republic included responding to active Republic tracking beacons and tracking them down. One of these beacons was activated aboard a New Republic prison ship during an assault conducted by a crew of mercenaries attempting to rescue a Twi'lek prisoner named Qin. However, before the New Republic could dispatch a squadron to respond to the beacon a bounty hunter known as the "The Mandalorian" transported the beacon aboard his personal gunship, the Razor Crest and deposited it on a space station owned by a criminal named Ranzar Malk.

Piloting T-65B X-wing starfighters, Dodger and his fighter squadron exited hyperspace at the sight of the criminal's station just as "The Mandalorian" left the system. As their X-wings passed the Razor Crest, Wolf confirmed that the tracking beacon was coming from the station, which Dodger reaffirmed. Closing in on the station, Wolf noted that the station's personal were preparing to launch a gunship which Ranzar Malk had intended to destroy the Razor Crest. The trio of pilots took this launching as an act of aggression, and used it as a justification to attack the station. Launching into attack position, the X-wings opened fire with their laser cannons and destroyed the gunship within the station's hanger bay, proceeding to circle around and continue their attack on the exterior of the station.
