Races D6 / Zapoots

Zapoots

Zapoots are small and relatively annoying creatures that inhabit nearly every inhabitable planet in the Palvar Sector and surrounding areas. They can be found in most lower class areas of almost every major city, frequenting bars and common scum hangouts.

No one knows for sure what planet they originated from and most speculate that their homeworld was destroyed by the Old Republic for the common good of the galaxy.

Zapoots are implanted with an internal bomb at birth that monitors their heartbeat and usually detonates once the heart has stopped beating. For this reason alone, those who know something about Zapoots, will go to great lengths to either avoid them or to simply control themselves and not give into their annoying nature and beat the living tar out of them.

The PDF has been known to hire small groups of Zapoots for minor raids on everything from criminals to Republic to Imperail outposts as even in death the Zapoots cause massive amounts of damage.

Special Skills:
Dexterity: Quick punch: To compensate for their lack of muscle, Zapoots use this technique to punch opponents quickly. Their Sting Gloves, boxing gloves with barbed wire wrapped around them, are the driving force behind this, and cause moderate damage.

Special Abilities:
Internal Bomb: Zapoots have an explosive implanted in them at birth. When a Zapoot is killed, the explosive (which monitors their heartbeat) explodes, inflicting 6D+2 damage in an 8 meter radius.

Story Factors:
Annoying: Zapoots are incredibly annoying, and this is unfortunate, because many adventurers want to rip these little SOBs' heads off (and are normally blown up as a result).
