Description: Seossra Thwisp was a Caphex female spy who served the Resistance. Keeping tabs on First Order activity along the borderlands, Thwisp was recalled into the Resistance after the Hosnian Cataclysm, and began serving as an intelligence analyst.

She returned to the field to fight in the Battle of Exegol with the rest of the Resistance. After they successfully defeated the forces of the First Order and Sith Eternal, Thwisp returned to the moon Ajan Kloss to celebrate the victory.

Seossra Thwisp was a Caphex female from Caphexdis who served the Resistance as a spy during their cold war with the First Order, keeping tabs on First Order activity along the borderlands. When full scale war broke out between the two factions following the Hosnian Cataclysm in 34 ABY, Thwisp was recalled from spy duty and began serving as an intelligence analyst, offering up her accumulated expertise on the First Order.

In 35 ABY, Thwisp was amongst the Resistance personnel stationed in the Resistance base on the jungle moon of Ajan Kloss. She returned to the field when the Resistance's forces traveled into the Unknown Regions to battle the First Order and Sith Eternal forces stationed on the planet Exegol. The Resistance ultimately triumphed in the battle after a large fleet of allies arrived to reinforce them. Following the battle, Thwisp returned with many others to Ajan Kloss to celebrate. During the celebration she stood talking with a human and then began cheering as the Wookiee Chewbacca and the pirate Maz Kanata reunited.
