

RPGGamer.org Characters D6 / Tee Watt Kaa (Lurmen)

Name: Tee Watt Kaa
Homeworld: Maridun
Species: Lurmen
Gender: Male
Height: 1.03 meters
Hair color: White
Eye color: Brown
Move: 8

DEXTERITY: 2D+1

Brawling Parry: 2D+2

Dodge: 5D

Melee Combat: 3D

PERCEPTION: 3D+1

Bargain: 4D+2

Investigation: 4D+1

Search: 4D

Persuasion: 4D+2

KNOWLEDGE: 3D

Alien Species: 3D+2

Planetary Systems: 3D+2

Willpower: 4D+2

STRENGTH: 2D+1

Climbing/Jumping: 3D+1

MECHANICAL: 2D+1

Beast Riding: 4D+1

TECHNICAL: 2D+2

First Aid: 3D+1

Special Abilities:

Arboreal: Lurmen are natural climbers, gaining +1D to all Climbing/Jumping rolls.

Small Size: Lurmen are small and slight creatures, requiring only half the sustenance of larger creatures.

Rolling: Some Lurmen had the ability to curl up into a ball and roll along the ground. Lurmen are able to cover large amounts of ground at great speed, gaining +5 to their move in this way, however they cannot do anything but move when curled up.

EQUIPMENT

Credits: 350

Rugged clothes

FORCE SENSITIVE - N
FORCE POINTS 2
DARK SIDE POINTS 0
CHARACTER POINTS 6

Description: Tee Watt Kaa was a male Lurmen who led a village on the Outer Rim world of Maridun during the Clone Wars. A devout pacifist, Kaa refused to engage in any sort of combat, even if his own life was in danger.

Biography

During the Clone Wars, Tee Watt Kaa lead his colony of Lurmen in a village on Maridun. Alongside his son Wag Too, he sought to find peace and solace away from the conflict.

Following the Battle at Quell, Kaa then met Jedi Knight Aayla Secura, Padawan Ahsoka Tano, and Clone Commander Bly. At first, he did not welcome the Jedi, saying that they were not peace keepers. He told them leave in order to preserve their peace. However, he could not ignore Ahsoka's plea for help for her badly wounded master. He allowed his healer son, Wag Too, to go with her and Bly while Secura stayed behind at his village. Kaa then gave Secura a drink to help her. During their time together, Secura and Kaa spoke about the Jedi's intentions to restore peace by fighting for the Republic.

Kaa and his fellow villagers then saw a Separatist landing ship coming towards their village. At first, he thought the Separatists were coming for the Jedi, but Tano told him that they did not know they were here. Kaa then told the Jedi to leave before they were found. He, despite Tano's objections, then went to speak with the Separatists. Kaa then met the Separatist commanding officer, General Lok Durd. Kaa stood by as Durd's battle droids searched the village for weapons and Republic contraband. Durd then told Kaa that he would do more random searches to insure security on the planet. After the Separatists left, Kaa then spoke with his son about preserving their peace.

The Jedi soon learned of Durd's plan to test a new weapon, the Defoliator, on the Lurmen village. The weapon had the ability to destroy any organic life but leave battle droids unharmed. Kaa was informed of this by the Jedi, who wanted to help defend the village. Kaa refused their help, however, due to his firm belief against fighting and conflict. His son, Wag Too, and his friends believed they should help the Jedi and clones defend the village. While the Republic group set up shield generators (stolen from the Separatist base) around the village, they attempted to fight off the droids and protect the Lurmen. Wag Too and his friends eventually helped fight back, but Kaa was still curious about what the true cost of them fighting back was.

Stats by FreddyB, descriptive text from WookieePedia.

Image copyright LucasArts.

Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.

