Droids D6 / GoCorp/Utilitec WA-7 service unit

Type: GoCorp/Utilitec WA-7 service unit
Manufacturer: GoCorp/Utilitech
Product line: WA-series
Class: Service droid
Height: 1.7 meters
Gender: Feminine Programming
Sensor color: Yellow

Dexterity: 2D
Knowledge: 1D
Cultures 4D, Languages 5D, Drink Preparation 5D
Mechanical: 1D
Perception: 2D
Strength: 1D
Technical: 1D

Equipped with:
Humanoid Body (two arms, head)
Gyro-balanced unipod
Repulsor stabilizer (+1D to avoid collisions, +1D to avoid dropping drinks)
Drive wheel
Built-in comlink
Order transmitter
Facial-recognition software
Two visual and two auditory sensors - human range
Vocabulator speech system

Move: 12

Description: The WA-7 service unit, commonly known as the WA-7 waitress droid was a third-degree service droid produced by GoCorp and Utilitech during the Mondeo Modernist period of the Galactic Republic.

Characteristics
The design of the WA-7 droid was typical of the era, consisting of streamlined contours, elliptical shapes and whimsical embellishments. The droid was propelled by an effective unipod wheel supported by gyro-balance circuitry. The unipod's drive impellers generated enough power for quick bursts of speed ideal for use within confined spaces such as the floor of a dining establishment. In addition, the droid's design was embellished with a metallic skirt and matching head fins.

The droid was fitted with more practical features, however, including a built-in order transmitter whose range could easily cover the interior of any diner or restaurant, and a vocoder allowing the droid to interact socially with patrons. Facial-recognition software enabled WA-7 units to recall customers' likenesses, and thus identify "regulars". The droid also sported a built-in comlink which could contact local authorities in some cases.

History
WA-7 units remained in use throughout the Mondeo Modernist period and beyond, even into the era of the Clone Wars. By this point, although many still operated as waitresses, some WA-7 units took odd jobs such as courier work, and private collectors even entered a WA-7 team into the nuna-ball league. The WA-7 players defeated Serv-O-Droid's RIC droid team in a match in 22 BBY. Another notable unit was the WA-7 nicknamed "FLO", who operated in Dex's Diner in the last decades of the Republic.

Stats by FreddyB, Descriptive Text from WookieePedia.
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.