Description: The Zeuols were a species of sentient, pale-faced beings recognizable for their large, solid-black eyes and coarse, off-white hair. At least some members of the species ventured into the galaxy at large, and at the end of the Clone Wars, the Mid Rim world of Ord Zeuol was represented in the Galactic Senate by a female Zeuol named Eeusu Estornii. Estornii attended the funeral of Padmé Amidala, senator and former queen of the planet Naboo, in 19 BBY.

Biology and appearance

The Zeuols' facial features distinguished them from other sentient species. Set against their pale-white skin, their countenance sported a high brow, a mouth bordered by prominent pink lips, a long nose that ended in two oblong nostrils, and two pronounced ocular ridges. Located at either side of the nose, the eye sockets contained two large, ovular, pitch-black eyes rimmed with pink flesh. Coarse, ropey, off-white hair came from the scalp, growing long enough in some specimens to cascade down the humanoid neck and shoulders. Two humanoid arms extended from the shoulders and ended in white, thin-fingered hands with fingernails that grew long and gray in at least some cases. Adult Zeuols were capable of growing to roughly 1.75 meters tall. The Zeuol species had at least one sex, female.

Society and culture
By the time of the Clone Wars, at least some Zeuols had access to spacefaring technology and were able to visit distant planets. A female Zeuol's personal adornments might have included an elaborate, brocade gown that fell to the floor from a riveted leather collar about the shoulders. Such garb might have been accented with a necklace, hair-tying jewelry, or metallic ornamentation worn between the eyes.

History
By the end of the Clone Wars in 19 BBY, the Zeuol Senator Eeusu Estornii represented the planet Ord Zeuol in the Republic's Galactic Senate. The planet lay in the Mid Rim's Vilonis sector, near the planet Naboo. Indeed, Estornii was one of thousands of attendees at the funeral of a fellow senator and Naboo's former queen, Padmé Amidala,[1 in 19 BBY.
