Description: Pharl McQuarrie was a human male from the planet Ralltiir who fought in the Clone Wars as a prominent military advisor. He later served as a general in the Alliance to Restore the Republic during the Galactic Civil War and his work aided in the retrieval of the Death Star plans. With his knowledge of planning and logistics, McQuarrie played a key role in planning the Alliance's headquarters on the planet Hoth, named Echo Base, and headed its construction before being selected as General Carlist Rieekan's second-in-command.

In 3 ABY, the Galactic Empire discovered the Alliance's presence on Hoth and deployed forces to attack Echo Base. McQuarrie was instrumental in coordinating a defensive action against the Empire that allowed the vast majority of the base's personnel and equipment to be evacuated to a rallying point.

Biography

Building Echo Base

A native of the planet Ralltiir, Pharl McQuarrie fought in the Clone Wars as a prominent military advisor and later came to serve as a general in the army of the Alliance to Restore the Republic during the Galactic Civil War against the Galactic Empire. It was in part through his efforts for the Alliance that the Death Star plans were retrieved by Princess Leia Organa following their recovery on the planet Scarif following the Battle of Scarif in 0 BBY.

After the plans were used to destroy the Death Star during the Battle of Yavin, he played an integral part in the planning and establishment of Echo Base, the Alliance's headquarters on the icy planet Hoth, and was personally selected to head up its construction, in which he proved instrumental, overseeing everything from the fundamental structure to the equipment installation. It took eighteen months to construct the base, two of which were simply installing the equipment. After the base's completion, the commander of Echo Base, General Carlist Rieekan, selected McQuarrie to be his second-in-command based on his contribution to the base.

The Battle of Hoth

In 3 ABY, less than a month after the Alliance had begun using Echo Base, an Imperial Viper probe droid discovered it and alerted the Empire. After locating and destroying the droid, the Alliance began to evacuate immediately. During the preparations, McQuarrie strode across one of the base's hangars past several other base personnel.

Before the evacuation could begin, an Imperial fleet arrived in the Hoth system and deployed ground forces to attack Echo Base. McQuarrie played a key role in coordinating a delaying defensive action against the Imperial forces and bought the Alliance time to evacuate the vast majority of the base's personnel and equipment to a rallying point, including all members of Alliance High Command who were present.

Personality and traits

McQuarrie's knowledge of planning and logistics made him integral during the planning and establishment of Echo Base. He was a human male with fair skin, white hair, and green eyes.

Equipment
While stationed at Echo Base, McQuarrie wore a brown cold-weather issue command parka, white command gauntlets, a brown belt, and a white insulated watch cap with a com unit, a face wrap, cap warmers, and green anti-glare goggles. He also carried a clipboard.
