Description: Nik Sant was a male human who served in the military of the Alliance to Restore the Republic during the Galactic Civil War. By the time of the Battle of Endor in 4 ABY, Sant was one of the most veteran scouts in the Rebel Alliance.

Biography

Nik Sant served the Alliance to Restore the Republic during the Galactic Civil War, and by 4 ABY he was one of the most veteran scouts in the Alliance Military. That year, the Rebel Alliance launched a decisive attack against the Galactic Empire during the Battle of Endor, where they intended to destroy the Empire's second Death Star superweapon. Sant, one of the Pathfinders, was part of a strike team led by General Han Solo that was tasked with destroying the shield generator that powered the Death Star's shield.

Their operation was a success, allowing Alliance forces to destroy the orbiting Death Star and fracture the Empire. Prior to the ground battle proper, he donned the armor of a captured scout trooper and took up the trooper's post at the shield generator bunker. Though the Imperials saw through his disguise and captured him, along with the rest of the strike team, he was saved when the local Ewok tribe ambushed the Imperials, allowing Solo and the rest of the Rebels to destroy the shield generator.

Personality and traits

Nik Sant was, by 4 ABY, an older male human with light skin, white hair, and a white beard. During the Battle of Endor, he wore the typical military uniform worn by members of the Pathfinders.
