Description: Brasso was a human male who was a Grappler on the planet Ferrix. He was also a friend of Cassian Jeron Andor.

Biography

In 5 BBY, Brasso was living on the planet Ferrix where he worked as a Grappler day to day and maintained a relationship with the Andor family. When Pre-Mor Enforcement officers arrived to arrest Cassian Andor for the murder of two Corporate Security Guards on Morlana One, he sabotaged one of their dropships by attaching a metal chain to the undercarriage of the transport, which was itself secured to a large piece of debris. When the security guards engagement with Andor and Luthen in the center of the city took a turn for the worse, one Corporate Security Officer, aiming to provide air support for his comrades, attempted to get the dropship airborne. Brasso's sabotage caused the subsequent crash of the transport and the death of the Security Officer, when the attached debris got caught in a nearby structure.

He later led the funeral procession for Maarva Andor as part of the Ferrix honor guard, carrying the ceremonial stone containing her remains down Rix Road. After Marrva's holographic speech inciting rebellion against the Empire, he participated in the riot that followed, engaging a number of Imperial Army Troopers and Stormtroopers from the local garrison. In the immediate aftermath of the riot and ensuing massacre, Brasso fled the planet with a number of his Ferrix compatriots and Bix Caleen.
