Description:Vetch was an Urodel male whom the spare parts vendor Nurchi used to try and threaten the human Cassian Andor into repaying him a deposit in 5 BBY. Nurchi confronted Andor in the streets of the planet Ferrix while Vetch loomed behind Andor; however, Andor questioned why Vetch was working for Nurchi and then left.

Biography

Vetch was an Urodel male that spent time on the planet Ferrix during the reign of the Galactic Empire. He was familiar with the humans Cassian Andor and Nurchi, the latter of whom worked as a spare parts vendor. In 5 BBY, Nurchi planned to use Vetch for intimidation while trying to get back a deposit from Andor, telling the Urodel that all he needed to do was stand there. When Nurchi later spotted Andor rushing by his stall, the vendor confronted the debtor and prevented him from passing until Vetch moved up behind Andor and loomed over him.

Andor was surprised to see Vetch working for Nurchi and questioned the vendor on if he was trying to threaten him. He then questioned Vetch as to why he had started taking orders from Nurchi, asking if the Urodel was desperate for work. Shifting his wide-set eyestalks, Vetch revealed that he had only been told to stand there, after which Nurchi again asserted that he wanted his money; however, Andor simply passed by him and left, stating that he would not mention the incident had taken place before saying farewell to Vetch. Nurchi then turned to stare at the Urodel, who questioned what was wrong.
