SPECIAL ABILITIES:

Vision: Trandoshans vision includes the ability to see in the infrared spectrum. They can see in darkness with no penalty, provided there are heat sources.

Clumsy: Trandoshans have poor manual dexterity. They have considerable difficulty performing actions which require precise finger movement and they suffer a penalty of ?2D whenever they attempt an action of this kind. In addition, they also have some difficulty using weaponry that requires a substantially smaller finger such as blasters and blaster rifles; most weapons used by Trandoshans have had their finger guards removed or redesigned to allow for the Trandoshans use.

Regeneration: Younger Trandoshans can regenerate lost limbs (fingers, arms, legs and feet). This ability disappears as the Trandoshan ages. Once per day, the Trandoshan must make a Moderate Strength or stamina roll. Success means that the limb regenerates by ten percent. Failure indicates that the regeneration does not occur.

Description: Babwa Venomor was a Trandoshan commander who led others of his species in helping the Galactic Empire to strip the planet Kashyyyk of its resources. In 19 BBY, he learned that a fugitive Jedi had attacked his forces, and led a convoy including Trandoshans collaborators and clone stormtroopers to locate them.

The convoy was then ambushed by the Jedi Gungi and both the rogue Clone Force 99 and the inhabitants of a nearby Wookiee sanctuary. During the fighting, Venomor purused Gungi alone into the jungle with a flame cannon, but after the weapon was destroyed, a trio of netcasters attacked the Trandoshan and carried him away wrapped in webbing.

Biography

Imperial collaborator

Babwa Venomor was a hunter who acted as commander of an opportunistic group of Trandoshans that worked in conjunction with the Galactic Empire. The Trandoshans burned through the lush forests of the jungle planet Kashyyyk, homeworld of the Wookiee species, to aid their Imperial allies in stripping the world of its resources and forcing it under Imperial rule.

In 19 BBY, Venomor was contacted via hologram by a tank commander who informed him that their modified Armored Assault Tank Mk I crew and accompanying guards had encountered more standing stones blocking their path in the jungle. Venomor ordered the tank commander to destroy the stones and keep to the schedule before disconnecting; however, after setting the stones ablaze, the tank commander's group was attacked and killed by the Wookiee Jedi Gungi and his allies in Clone Force 99.

Venomor later arrived in the clearing where the tank had been destroyed as part of a larger convoy including two more tanks and several clone stormtroopers under his command. Emerging from a tank hatch and sniffing the air, he moved over to the destroyed tank, where the clones had discovered marks from Gungi's lightsaber. When the clones stated that they would need to inform Imperial command, Venomor declared that would not be necessary if he could locate the Jedi first. Climbing onto one of the tanks, he announced to the other Trandoshans present that he would grant one hundred Wookiee pelts to whoever could find the Jedi first.

Arachnid ambush
Venomor's large convoy then followed tracks toward another nearby Wookiee sanctuary, but as the tracks broke off, they were ambushed by Gungi, Clone Force 99 and the Wookiee villagers, who destroyed one of the convoy's tanks with a thermal detonator. Venomor ordered his men to attack as the opposing force opened fire from the undergrowth, but the Wookiees and their allies soon retreated and drew the Trandoshans and stormtroopers further into the jungle before renewing the assault.

Venmor watched Gungi disable another of the tanks with his lightsaber before emerging from his own tank with a flame cannon. Aiming it at the Jedi, he inadvertently set one of his own men on fire while firing it at Gungi, but the Wookiee managed to avoid the flames and retreated into the forest, drawing Venomor in alone after him. Gungi's allies then drew the commander's remaining forces into a netcaster nest where they were swarmed and routed. Stalking Gungi through the forest with his weapon ready, Venomor began setting the foliage ablaze as he saw the Jedi dart past him. Soon the Trandoshan was surrounded by a circle of flame, which Gungi lept into from a nearby tree. Nimbly dodging the Jedi's lightsaber, he continued to fire the flame cannon, pushing the Wookiee back when Gungi slashed at him again.

Realizing the slash had destroyed his flame cannon, Venomor threw it and his satchel aside and prepared to fight with his claws, but before he could attack, three netcaster dropped from the canopy above and surrounded him. Gungi deactivated his lightsaber, and no longer seeing the Wookiee as threat, the netcaster began jabbing at Venomor with their mouth appendages. The Trandoshan attempted to fend them off, but was quickly knocked to the ground and wrapped in webbing. As Gungi lept to safety from the ring of fire, Venomor was pulled screaming up into the canopy by the netcaster's webbing.

Personality and traits
Venomor was a Trandoshan with red eyes and yellow scales mottled with green. He cared only for trophies and bragging rights and was intrigued by the promise of a Jedi survivor as a potential prize. He offered Wookiee pelts as a reward to his men for finding the Jedi, and was willing to risk anything to claim Gungi for himself, preferring to hunt alone and find Gungi himself rather than have the Imperial command alerted. He pursued Gungi with murderous intent, inadvertently setting one of his soldiers on fire and leaving him unaided while pursuing the Jedi.

Equipment
Venomor wore a blue uniform with fur on the left shoulder, a satchel, and a comlink on his wrist. He had many weapons in his arsenal, but prefered to use his flame cannon when hunting Gungi.
